Great room in Greenwich

BUILD ON SUCCESS

The Home Builders and Remodelers Association of Connecticut recently recognized the talent and expertise of Darien resident and architect Charles Hilton. The organization presented Hilton with a whopping ten HOBIs. These awards were created to celebrate excellence in home design, construction and technology. Among the award-winning projects executed by Hilton's Greenwich-based firm is a new residence designed to resemble an old French manor barn (pictured here). The focal point of this Greenwich residence, and arguably one of the most dramatic spaces, is the central great room. Framed with antique timbers, it features authentic French plaster walls, plank and beam ceiling, a walk-in Carmague limestone fireplace and floor-to-ceiling bay windows. Hilton is the founder of Charles Hilton Architects, a design firm that specializes in high-end traditional residential design. Hilton has residential projects located across the country, but the majority of his work is located in Fairfield and Westchester counties.

Take Flight

Here's a home that brings new meaning to the notion of getting away from it all. This secluded retreat at the end of a private lane off Luke's Wood Road in New Canaan is a great escape in its own right, but you can also make a quick exit via helicopter from the backyard. While helicopter landings are not allowed in New Canaan, this unique eight-acre estate bordering a land trust includes nearly two acres in Pound Ridge, New York, where landings and take-offs are permitted on personal property. Other features include a putting green, a large stone terrace, an oversized heated pool and spa, and a custom pool house with cathedral ceiling, bamboo walls, full bar, bath and changing room. The ultimate getaway? Absolutely. Listed with Barbara Cleary's Realty Guild for $3,695,000. realty-guild.com
