My master bathroom—I love the organic nature and use of pure materials all wrapped up into one space. I also love the strong color of the black herringbone floor offset by the walnut cabinet and the movement of the quartz countertop. It feels as if I'm in a super-luxe hotel.

My garden—It's an extension of my home. I love to entertain in my garden and walk the property with friends and gardening enthusiasts. But this one spot in my open-air porch is where I come to be alone. This is where I feel peace, tranquility and quiet.

My kitchen—This 1957 Royal Barry Wills farmhouse kitchen was completely renovated and updated for the twenty-first century. The amply scaled, custom marble sinks form the room's nucleus, and it's the hub where my family and guests gather for appetizers and cocktails as the meal is prepared. I love the function, versatility and durability of the deep sink with a drainboard to the right.

My kitchen—As a family, we spend most of our time in our kitchen and family room. The stainless-steel tiles, concrete counters and simple cabinetry lend a contemporary feel, while the raw-edge table, natural light and area rug make the space inviting and warm. It's the perfect place to cook, eat and relax together as a family.

My mudroom—Our newly expanded mudroom is my favorite spot in the house. With an active family of five (plus furry friends), keeping the order I crave is an uphill climb, but this flexible, generous space carved out of a seldom-used room makes it a luxury. Having everything in its place sets the right tone for us as soon as we enter our home.

My study—I spend a great deal of time here doing all kinds of office and personal work. It's warm, inviting and comfortable, and its central location—adjacent to the kitchen and outdoor pool terrace—ensures I'm never too far away from my family and all the action.
