

Trending Now: Top 10 New Wine Cellars on Houzz

Whether you prefer white, red or rosé, these popular wine cellars will hit the spot

For many wine connoisseurs, having a cellar in their home is the ultimate luxury. Whether you have the space for a large walk-in cellar or just enough room for a stylish niche to display your favorite bottles, these trending wine cellars provide a bounty of inspiration. Here are ideas taken from the most popular wine cellars as measured by the number of people saving photos of them to their Houzz ideabooks recently. Where would you most like to uncork your next bottle of wine?

1. Rustic refinement. This guesthouse wine cellar in Greenwich, Connecticut, includes custom-constructed oak storage. “In looking at French buildings, a lot of the towers are for pigeons and open on the ground floor, so you see the timber construction all the way up. So we did that here too, but finished in between the timbers,” architect Charles Hilton says. Limestone and brick pavers on the floor connect the exterior and interior.